

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

When performing rotation and compression processing of image data, judgment is made upon whether image data for n lines is white, compression processing is carried out without performing rotation processing if the image data is white, and rotation processing is effected in units of  $n \times n$  and then compression processing is carried out if the image data is not white.